Subject: Gartner Research Portal Delivers Information Technology News to NU Community
From: it-communications@northwestern.edu
Date: March 31, 2006

To all Technology Leaders:

The entire University community now has direct, immediate Web access to the latest industry-wide IT research and news analysis from Gartner, Inc.

Northwestern University Information Technology (NUIT), in partnership with the University Library, is making Gartner's core research content available to all faculty, staff, and students. Gartner is a leading consulting firm providing expertise and independent advice to 45,000 information technology clients worldwide.

Gartner's extensive online research network is a resource for the Northwestern community to access on a daily basis, enabling all users to learn more about how information technology is shaping their lives. In addition to news and in-depth analysis on virtually all aspects of technology, the site offers a variety of media including Webcasts, podcasts, and blogs.

We invite you to explore the Gartner site. To access the portal from NUIIT's home page at <http://www.it.northwestern.edu>, select "Gartner Research" under "Educational Resources," then log in with your NetID and password. You can also access the Gartner research page via the University Library Web site at <https://rosebud.library.northwestern.edu/gartner>.

Please direct questions about the Gartner research portal to the University Library Information Commons at 847-491-7658 or ic@northwestern.edu.

------------------
NUIT Communications
it-communications@northwestern.edu

**************************
This message was sent using the NU Bulkmail service to a list of IDs with normal priority.