To the Northwestern community:

On Monday, June 20, the nwu.edu domain will be permanently removed from University DNS (domain name server) services. This also applies to all sub-domains, including md.nwu.edu, law.nwu.edu, and kellogg.nwu.edu.

Any host computer that has continued to be addressed by a name within the nwu.edu domain will no longer be reachable under that name, and services from that computer may no longer be available within or outside of the University after June 20.

The University has been migrating from its original nwu.edu domain to the northwestern.edu domain since March 2000. Details are available at NUIT's "What's New & Changing with Technology @ NU:" <http://www.it.northwestern.edu/transitions/2005/phase_domain-name.html>.

* How does this affect me? *

--If you have an nwu.edu e-mail or Web address published anywhere, it should be changed to a northwestern.edu-based address.

--If you have previously bookmarked any nwu.edu Web pages, you will need to update your bookmark list.

--System administrators should use the corresponding northwestern.edu domain name for their host systems.

Please direct questions to consultant@northwestern.edu or the NUIT Support Center at 847-491-HELP (4357).
